letter from

Agustín Alonso SJ
Entreculturas Director

Dear Friends of Entreculturas:

Since last year's letter, many people have come our way, both in Latin America and Africa. My most vivid image is of the boys and girls, 11.000 in total, at the Refugee Camps in Rwanda, where the education given by the Jesuit Refugee Service will be the only belonging they will be able to take back with them when they return to their home countries. There is a face, a story, behind each person. Hundreds of faces who are friends, new opportunities to meet, to accompany and to work with, side by side, in a world in permanent evolution; sometimes with the joy of achieving hopeful changes and sometimes, simply accompanying the pain and trying to make it hurt less.

"People in movement" has been the motto of our National Encounter, mainly focused on the African continent. Movement and Africa, an attitude and a reality that have marked our activity during this past year.

Movement and opening to Africa. We have worked, together with Fe y Alegría, on how to support education in the African continent, especially with the Jesuit Refugee Service.

To accompany, serve and defend those who accompany, serve and defend is the task of Entreculturas and our way of being present in Africa.

The Fe y Alegría schools advance in their opening to society. This was agreed at the 37th International Congress of this Movement in Bolivia under the title "Education and Community Social Promotion". This line of work is recommended by us in our report "The Official Aid for Education in Spotlight" a first analysis of the Spanish official cooperation on education in the framework of our advocacy work in the North.

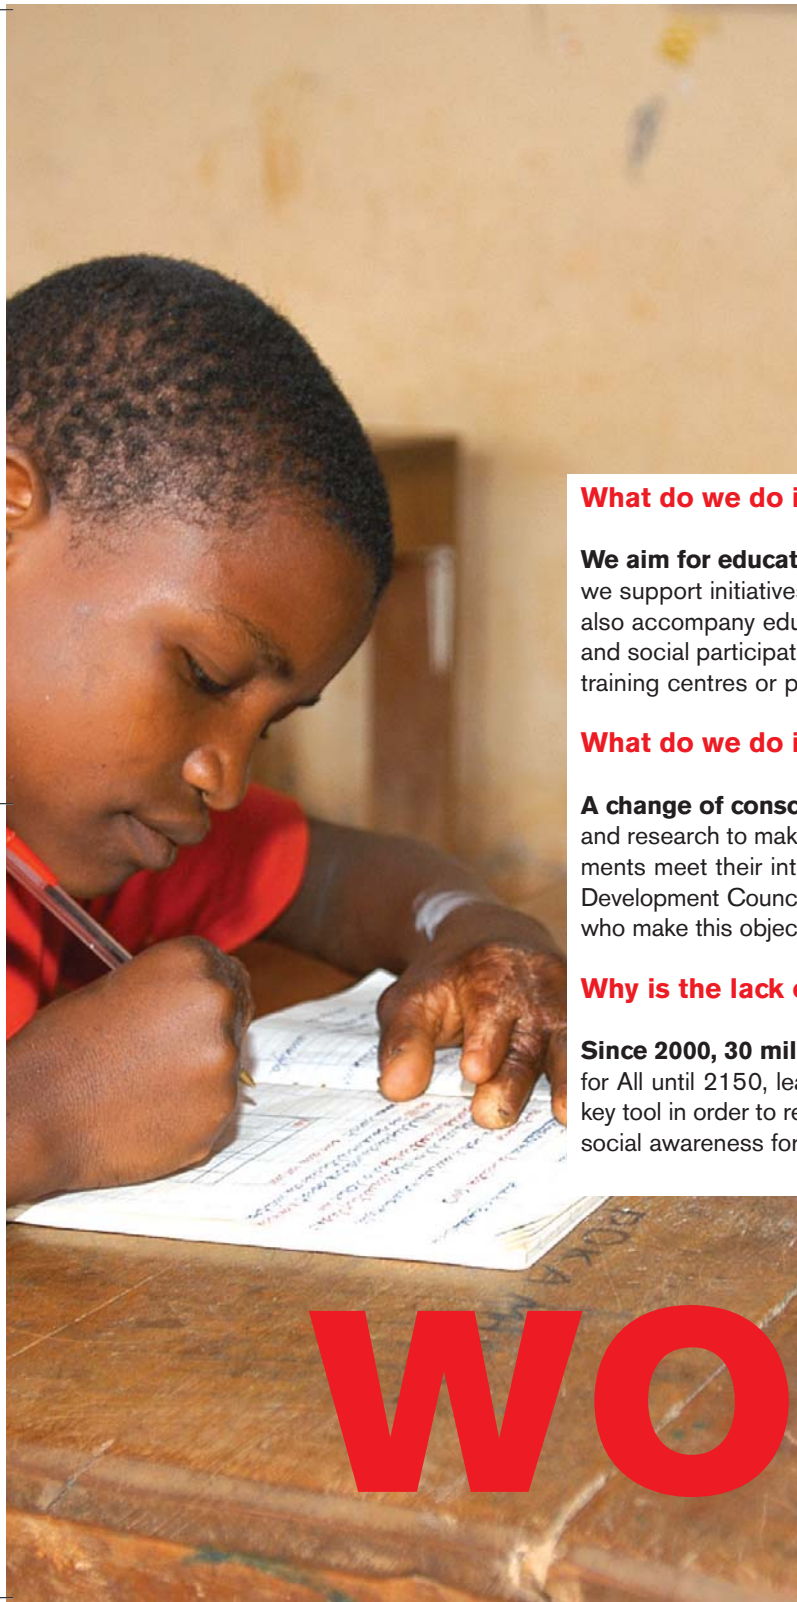

Many friends from Latin America have visited us this year, sharing their concerns and projects and our work and worries with us. Many of them have also come from Africa, increasingly present in Entreculturas.

Last of all, our permanent internal thinking and discussion to increase and improve our work. Improvement regarding the management of our projects, the education given in the schools we support and our internal work, keeping a permanent attitude of transparency and open to what our collaborators have to say to us. All of this will make up our future Strategic Plan 2008-2012.

We try to walk this path with our local partners and the populations we support, side by side, feeling their setbacks and joys. Because, in the end, this is the only way that the building of a local and global fairer world will be able to answer to the different cultures, concerns and realities that live together on earth.

What do we do in the South?

We aim for education to reach the largest number of people but always improving its quality and aimed at social change. For this purpose, we support initiatives that promote the education for the less favoured in Latin America, Africa and Asia. We not only carry out specific projects but we also accompany educational programmes and procedures. Education and community promotion are complementary in advancing towards civic, labour and social participation and democratic behaviour. Building classrooms, educating teachers, supporting radio based education programmes, labour skill training centres or promoting education in refugee camps are among the activities we carry out.

What do we do in Spain?

A change of conscience in the North is the key to end the unfair international relations. We carry out campaigns on education, communication and research to make the Spanish society aware that education is essential for development. We also work on public advocacy in order to make governments meet their international commitments for a world with more justice. In 2004, we were named representatives of the Development NGOs in the Development Council together with four other organisations. Our work in Spain is possible thanks to the efforts and enthusiasm of hundreds of volunteers who make this objective a worthy cause of self engagement.

Why is the lack of education a priority problem?

Since 2000, 30 million more children go to school. But progress is too slow. At this rhythm, many countries will not succeed in having an Education for All until 2150, leaving way behind the engagement of attaining the goal by 2015. This limitation will determine their lives. We believe education is a key tool in order to reduce the vulnerable position of millions of people in the world. The education we believe in enables job opportunities, self esteem and social awareness for change.

Our Partners in the South

Our main partners in America and Africa are the popular education movement Fe y Alegría and the Jesuit Refugee Service (JRS). The quality and seriousness of their work has been proved for decades. Entreculturas is one of the members of the Fe y Alegría network, one of the most relevant worldwide educational organizations in 17 countries with 1.200.000 students. The JRS promotes education in the very difficult environment of the refugee camps and displaced populations as a consequence of the many armed conflicts, unstable political situations and natural catastrophes that take place nowadays.

Do we have network initiatives?

We are firm believers in networking with other social agents as enrichment both in thinking processes and in the impact of projects and promoted activities. We work in close collaboration with Alboan and other Spanish Development NGOs. We belong to the Xavier Network (European NGOs network closely related to the Society of Jesus). We support joint Campaigns with the Spanish Development NGO Coordinator, CONGDE, regional and local coordinators and with the REDES Platform which we currently preside. We are members of the Global Campaign for Education, the Spanish Coalition to Stop the Use of Child Soldiers and the "No doubt, no debt" campaign.

How do we control the actual distribution of our funds?

All our accounts are audited by an external audit firm on an annual basis which is included in this report. The audit for the year 2006 has been done by BDO Audiberia. In order to ensure our good practices, we submit to the evaluation of the Follow Up Commission of the Code of Conduct of the CONGDE, of which our Deputy Director is a member and Fundación Lealtad analyzes our degree of transparency. This Foundation's report, for 2006, has established once again that we comply with all the required maximums. Finally, all donor institutions control the final destination of their contributions and make their own evaluation of our joint projects.

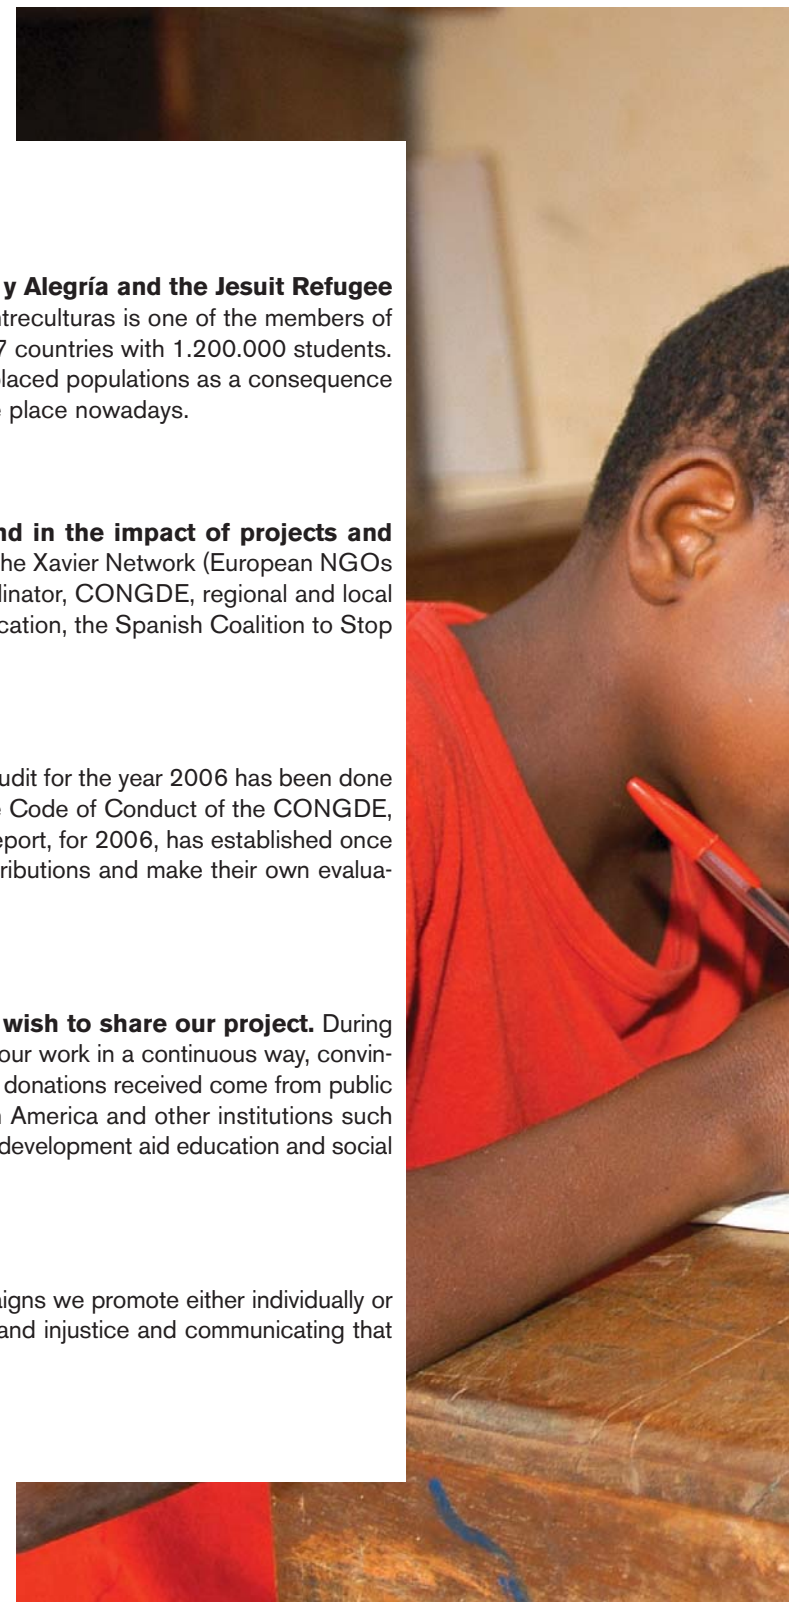

Our accounts

In Entreculturas we are making a major effort in order to increase donations from members or donors who wish to share our project. During the year 2006, 53% of our funds have been raised by our contributors and there are increasingly more people who support our work in a continuous way, convinced that the real commitment for development cannot be the result of responding by impulses to concrete actions. The other donations received come from public entities such as the Spanish Agency for International Cooperation (AECI) through Programmes and Agreements for Latin America and other institutions such as the municipalities and regional governments. 92,8% of total funds received has been used in projects in the South and for development aid education and social awareness education in the North.

How can you help?

We suggest you join as a member, giving a donation, enrolling in our volunteer programmes or participating in the campaigns we promote either individually or collectively. Another very useful way of collaborating is to be well informed on our reality, the causes of unequal situations and injustice and communicating that access to education abolishes unequal situations and transforms vulnerable realities.

about

Entreculturas is a Development NGO promoted by the Jesuits. It is born in the South and believes that education is a key tool for development, transformation, social change and intercultural dialogue.

This is why we support education projects among the excluded populations of Latin America, Africa and Asia. Our engagement also leads us to raise awareness among the Northern population so as to enable them to change structures and act as change agents for the South in favour of justice.

An international Network

Entreculturas is a member of two international networks with roots in the South.

Fe y Alegría is an institution, which since 1955, aims for education to reach the less favoured populations in all Latin America. It works to educate in all dimensions promoting a free and responsible individual; an education striving for change from and with the communities to build a fairer, fraternal, democratic and participating society. Today, the schools of Fe y Alegría are in popular areas of 16 countries with more than one million two thousand pupils. Entreculturas is part of the Federation since its foundation, as a full member.

The Jesuit Refugee Service (JRS) accompanies serves and defends the refugee's and displaced person's rights, worldwide for the past 25 years. To accomplish this, it carries out child and adult education programmes, social services and counselling, pastoral and medical care. The JRS mission is directed to all those people who have been forced to abandon their homes because of conflicts, human disasters or the violation of human rights. Today the JRS works in 50 countries. www.jrs.net

our world the south

“We are engaged in a popular education project to promote and build citizens, based on participation and dialogue; it is a political, ethical and pedagogical option”.

Entreculturas Cooperation Policies Document, 2006-2010

Our cooperation for development work aims to support the development of the more vulnerable populations through popular education as a fundamental pillar, trying to impact on the community problems.

Entreculturas tries to place the human being at the centre of its activities. We recognize that the individual is only fully developed in its community; therefore, our work is oriented to promoting honest people committed to their environment. This option for the human being is accompanied by community and network building, with spaces for sharing and supporting one another.

Entreculturas understands that Cooperation for Development has to be based on dialogue and joint work between all implicated actors. Stable alliances between North and South organizations, added to the beneficiaries' voices with full knowledge and contact with reality, are essential in order to advance towards a fairer world in the framework of mutual collaboration. The ignorance or bad interpretation of determined cultural contexts can make development processes difficult.

We firmly believe that our work should be focused on the causes. It should promote international advocacy and public action. We should work from the view of the excluded, trying to develop their potential as capable and critical citizens.

Support of the Popular Education in Latin America, hand in hand with Fe y Alegría

Latin America continues to be the world's most unequal region. The economic, social and cultural breach has a clear source in ethnics, gender or residence. This breach which affects societies in the entire region affects daily life and the capacity of sharing a common future. In the education world, the main differences are seen in the quality of education. The social polarization in the access to a quality education is a clear proof of the existing inequalities.

Fe y Alegría assumes education as a pedagogical and political proposal for transformation. As a "Movement of Popular Education and Social Promotion", it promotes an education targeted to the impoverished and excluded sectors in order to promote their personal development and social participation. Entreculturas is a supporting platform for Fe y Alegría, our main partner in Latin America and with whom we share work and mission.

In a continent where education needs to be included in the political agenda and civil society needs to be articulated through solid organizations, Fe y Alegría has the challenge to become a subject of public activity capable of impacting in policies and programmes to promote quality education for all; to overcome poverty and end social exclusion; to develop institutional strength and promote management so as to reinforce its identity and guarantee the economic and social sustainability of the Movement.

Accompanying the world's refugees, hand in hand with the JRS

In an increasingly global world, Africa is searching for her own identity. This makes us recognize her capacities and limitations. Africa is a complex continent, plural and creative, well beyond stereotypes.

In this context, Entreculturas gives priority support to the Jesuit Refugee Service which firmly believes the African Jesuits' responsibility in the task of building a new Africa.

The work of the JRS in defence of the rights of the displaced and refugees in the continent and its firm commitment to their education, currently faces a changing reality. The traditional African values, such as hospitality seem to diminish. The refugees are no longer guests, they have become strangers. The current model of the refugee camp is not working. Alternatives are necessary in order to improve the situation of the refugees, enabling their insertion in the receiving community and promoting their independence.

All this work is carried out in a continent whose main challenges are to address the worrying impact of HIV/ AIDS, to overcome existing armed conflicts, to develop better run governments with greater attention to social concerns, making the local community beneficiary of the exploitation of natural resources, in addition to contributing to sustainable development.

Thus the importance the JRS gives to civil society as a watchdog of these processes and its need to continue advocacy promotion.

“We believe that we live in one unique world, interdependent and global with one common future”

Entreculturas Cooperation Policies Document 2006-2010.

What we do

We work in Latin America, Africa and Asia together with other organisations with strong local ties. We jointly plan and carry out proposals for life quality improvement and development opportunities for the most needed.

In order to achieve this, we carry out action plans to structure, develop and define by geographical areas, the sector priorities of our cooperation in the South. These plans are structured at regional and country level.

The action plans are carried out by programmes, projects and specific activities. The programmes are only carried out with our strategic partners at international level on a long term basis. These programmes have other implications with Entreculturas' objectives, such as advocacy, education for development or volunteer activities. The projects address concrete objectives and results to solve significant problems of beneficiaries in a determined period of time. The activities are punctual, with time and content limit.

In order to carry all this out, Entreculturas provides human, technical and financial support.

in 2006

..... We supported 152 new projects.

..... In addition to our strategic partners, we have worked 40 local partners in America and 23 in Africa.

..... We have written our Cooperation Policies document, with a very wide the participation within Entreculturas (several departments' commission, delegations, local members and Society of Jesus representatives).

..... The AECI, Spanish Agency for International Cooperation, signed a Cooperation Agreement with Entreculturas for 10 million Euros for the period 2006-2009.

..... Approval of the International Fe y Alegría Federation agreement providing information-technologies for the deprived communities in Latin America. Financed by Accenture International.

..... Continuation of the 2004-2006 Popular Education Quality Programmes for Social Inclusion and Education Equity affecting all local Latin America Fe y Alegrías.

..... Starting of the three year Fe y Alegría Institutional Strengthening Programme 2006-2008 together with Alboan.

..... Launching of the emergency programme to help education recovery in Lebanon after the bomb attack.

..... Creation of the Evaluation and Quality Department in Entreculturas.

..... Approval of regional activities in Latin America to increase coverage and quality in education financed by MAPFRE and INDITEX.

Engagement with Quality Education

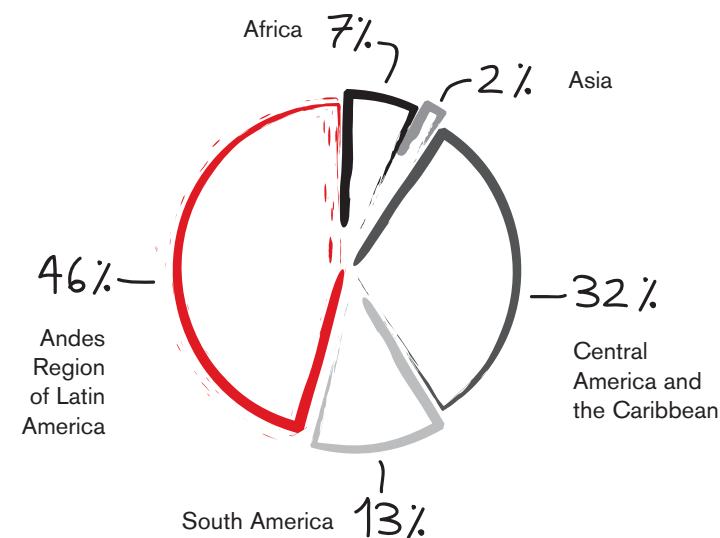

Education, in order to be a truly effective tool for change, must be a Quality Education. Strong public education systems, a participating school community, sufficient teacher and education personnel, dynamic curricula, new technologies and education evaluation systems are some of the elements needed for the quality we intend to achieve.

Under the agreement that Entreculturas has signed with the Spanish Agency for International Cooperation, directed to the most vulnerable and deprived children, we try to improve primary education in Latin America. The programme aims to impact on both universal access and improving the education quality. To impact on the latter, the agreement addresses management and teacher training and community participation. The local Fe y Alegrías will be responsible for carrying out the programme.

The programme will be carried out during the next four years in priority countries that require special attention from the Spanish Cooperation: Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia, Peru, Paraguay, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama and Dominican Republic, in addition to Argentina and Haiti where it is hoped to be reproduced and will impact the education sector.

Living in peace

Dominican Republic and Haiti are two countries in permanent tension motivated by the movement of Haitians to the neighbouring country. Solidaridad Fronteriza, the name given to the Jesuit Refugee and Migrant Service, together with its counterpart Solidarité Frontière in Haiti, work to achieve peaceful living and social justice, supported by Entreculturas.

Through workshops, these organizations try to help the Dominican population to see the immigration as an opportunity and the Haitian population, at both sides of the border, to improve its self esteem and be aware of its rights. Solidaridad Fronteriza also works so that the Administration, the Army and other professionals with social influence, such as journalists or lawyers, change their attitudes towards immigrants.

Convinced of the implied strength of working together, Solidaridad Fronteriza tries to articulate and strengthen local associations so that their voice may be taken into account in municipal matters. This objective is in the framework of the hard and constant advocacy work that the Jesuit Refugee and Migrant Service carry out in Dominican Republic.

In years 2002, 2003 and 2004 the amounts for a supporting Regional Programmes and for Institutional Strengthening not applied to specific countries are not shown in these tables.

Radio based education for adults

Bolivia is not only one of Latin America's three poorest countries; it has also the highest inequality rates. The lack of access to education is key in enlarging and maintaining the social breach. To the low education coverage, we have to add the poor objectives, methodologies and curricula where the student memorizes and repeats with no analysis or context. Teaching is tedious and there is also a lack of government teachers and personnel for adult education and people have little opportunities to develop and improve citizen participation.

In this context, 33.600 youth and adults try to work for their own future. Through the radio programme "Teacher at Home" run by the Instituto Radiofónico Fe y Alegría (IRFA) they try to follow education programmes that were denied to them as children for reasons such as their cultural origin, living in rural areas or the fact of being a woman in a context where this can determine school attendance. This programme offers alternative distance education for 33.600 adults and youth; all of them illiterate or forced to abandon school early. Radio is a literacy and primary education tool with transversal impact in matters such as development, democracy and citizenship. The homes and work sites change, for a time, into education spaces, making education relate directly to the citizen's daily life.

Uvira Child Soldiers

“We were five friends, but one of us died in a combat”. These words are especially hard when said by a 17 year old Congolese boy. A boy whose dream, at this moment, is to work for his community in his own mechanic garage. And this will be possible thanks to the work that the Jesuit Refugee Service carries out at the Uvira Transit and Orientation Centre with the support of Entreculturas.

Once the JRS finds these children and manages to demobilize them, it transfers them to the Centre. The challenge is to enable them to lead a normal life, since the children have deep psychological traumas. Education plays an important role so they are offered the possibility of literacy; to continue with their studies or professional training. Hair-dressing, carpentry, soap manufacturing or mechanics are some of the education alternatives offered at the Centre.

When the stay at the Centre is ended and after a raising awareness process in families and community, the time for reinsertion comes. The child returns home or to the home of a relative where he will continue studying or start a small activity with the help of a “kit” provided by the JRS.

Hope for the future after the tsunami

During 2006, together with a Television team, we visited the Aceh Province, in the island of Sumatra, the worst hit by the tsunami in December 2004, and we witnessed the reconstruction work that the Jesuit Refugee Service (JRS) carries out with our support.

We talked with brave women, capable of overcoming the adversity that took away their husbands, children and possessions. Women like those in Lamno who not only weave straw mats but also the beginning of a new life. Entreculturas supports these income generating activities by granting loans without interests. The criteria when supporting an activity is that the beneficiary must be extremely vulnerable and the activity will benefit the community. This is the case of steelwork shops, motor bike repairs or the fishing tools for a community, where aid aims to be coherent with a sustainable development that will not generate future dependencies.

We visited schools full of students in newly built buildings or in tents in the sand. We met volunteer teachers supported by the JRS and convinced of the importance of education. And we have accompanied JRS volunteers in the extra curricular activities they carry out, not only to help with school work, but to help them overcome the traumas inflicted by the tsunami and by the armed conflict the region has been immersed in over the past 30 years and which ended in August with the signing of a peace agreement by the government and the GAM guerrilla group.

The accompaniment of the JRS is a cooperation in which the beneficiaries are truly responsible for their own development.

Awareness raising in the education world

Printed and on line didactic resources for the education community

Entreculturas carries out education campaigns to enable teachers to address issues such as exclusion, equality or injustice with the students. Periodical materials, videos with didactic guides and school calendars are some of the tools offered to teachers.

in 2006

- Publication of three new issues of the magazine “Moving in Network” for primary and secondary students in the framework of the Campaign “Is it the same?” The magazine is published in printed and electronic format.
- Our education material is distributed among 500 education centres in Spain.
- We are still present in the education portal Educared where materials and assessment for educators is offered. www.entreculturas.org/educared.htm
- Launching of the magazines for families in view of the proposals published in Educared.
- Edition of an on-line education resource guide. (www.entreculturas.org/educacion)
- The video “The adventures of Kalz and Tin” tries to transmit solidarity values to the smaller ones and is complemented with a new didactic guide with added activities.
- Agreements are signed for volunteers to work as trainees, with the following universities: Autonoma, Complutense, UNED, Carlos III, Politécnica and Comillas in Madrid, with the University of Valencia and with the University of A Coruña.
- We got close to popular education with Luisa Pernaleté’s tour “the Ecuador back pack” to Valencia, Valladolid, Murcia. Madrid, A Coruña, Zaragoza and Logroño.

Special for families in our Campaign “Is it the same?”

In Entreculturas we are convinced that education of the smaller ones should not end in the classrooms and therefore we want to impact on the importance the family has in the awareness process to achieve a fairer world. With the education materials that Entreculturas offers in the framework of the campaign “Is it the same?”, the newspaper “Moving in Net. Families” seeks to offer parents or tutors procedures to work with values for development in the daily home life. The document is divided in nine blocks with proposals such as indoor or outdoor games, solidarity cooking, watching television or shopping together.

Alternativas solidarias

En esta sección queremos proponerte alternativas para convertir momentos cotidianos (leer un cuento, mantener una discusión...) en oportunidades de tratar temas como la igualdad, la valoración de la diversidad o la paz, siempre desde el diálogo en la familia.

La lectura propuesta es una alternativa de ocio que permite acercarnos a otra cultura a través de la literatura uruguaya, conocer una historia que podría haber sucedido en algún lugar de Argentina y poner a nuestro alcance la cultura de América Latina.

La segunda actividad ofrece una alternativa de diálogo a los pequeños problemas que surgen en la familia debidos a la falta de comunicación, para comprobar cómo es posible llegar a un acuerdo en un conflicto si ponemos el esfuerzo en compartir la opinión de los demás y no sólo en defender la nuestra.

Si se te ocurren otras alternativas solidarias: ¡háznoslas llegar!

El igualdad de oportunidades: Principio que garantiza la igualdad de derechos a todos de la eliminación de distinciones de carácter social o personal, que sitúan a las personas en posición de desventaja de cara al cumplimiento de sus derechos.

Rev. Siglo XXI de España Editores S.A.

En algún lugar del tiempo, más allá del tiempo, el mundo era gris. Gracias a los indios shir, que miraban los colores a los dioses, ahora el mundo resplandece y los colores del mundo arden en los ojos que los miran.

Ticio Rindler acompañó a un equipo de la televisión, que viajó al Chaco, desde muy lejos, para filmar escenas de la vida cotidiana de los labri.

Una niña indígena perseguía al director del equipo, silenciosa porque pegada a su cuerpo, y lo miraba fijo a la cara, de muy cerca, como queriendo ver cómo en sus raras ojos ardían.

El director recorrió a los buenos oficios de Ticio, que conocía a la niña y ofrecía sus largas. Ella contestó:

- Yo quiero saber de qué color ve usted las cosas.
- Del mismo que tú, señor director.

- ¿Y cómo sabe usted de qué color veo yo las cosas?

Para comentar:

- ¿Por qué los colores están en los ojos de los que miran?
- ¿Crees tú que la niña y el director ven las cosas iguales o distintas? ¿Por qué?
- ¿Recuerdas una situación en la que hayas tenido un "punto de vista" diferente con un amigo, de qué cosas que se ha dicho?
- Se comenta entre todos y todos por qué si se está tener un único punto de vista, se tiende a ser más tolerante y se aceptan mejor las diferencias y la diversidad de razas, religiones, ideologías, personas.

Teacher's back pack

Luisa Pernalette, Director of the Fe y Alegría schools in Guayana, Venezuela and a pro human rights activist, came to Spain with Entreculturas to tell us about the lessons she learnt during her years of experience with the most vulnerable communities. From her back pack, or "corralito" she unfolded all sorts of pieces that build a whole theory of popular education, an education for people committed to their context and eager for change. All of this wrapped up with humour and creativity.

In the towns she visited, she showed her hat full of flowers, because a popular teacher not only has to evaluate pupil's progress, but also show it by "giving flowers". She also showed her panoramic glasses, because the work with the students has to be done taking the context into account; her introspective glasses to look at the heart, her wig for creative ideas, since each situation requires a different answer. Her bag also carries a "zampoña", an instrument made up of different size tubes which reminds us that each one of the students has a unique value for the group, or a little trumpet which alerts us on listening to what is not said.

Networking and participation activities in the education world

Entreculturas meets the challenge to establish a network of students, teachers and schools. Through the Entreculturas Youth Network, we seek to let the youth experience, from their schools, what participation and citizenship is all about and let them practice it assuming their co responsibility in building a local and global fairer world. This is directed to youth between 14 and 18 years old. The students, organized in groups, carry out solidarity activities in their schools or youth associations. These groups work in net, meeting at Regional Assemblies where they share concerns and initiatives with students from other communities. The groups are accompanied by teachers from their schools and by Entreculturas education teams.

Entreculturas goes on tour with El Canto del Loco

Entreculturas accompanied the musical group El Canto del Loco on its summer tour. During the group's concert throughout Spain, volunteers of Entreculturas delegations and the Youth Networks attended information stands. Thanks to this activity we have been able to transmit our message of equity and social change to the younger public.

Youth committed to their centres

Youth network members have developed solidarity agendas at their centres to bring the reality of the South close to their fellow students and discuss each one's responsibility in the construction of a more human society. Among the activities carried out in 2006, we would like to underline the following: working with families, awareness raising workshops, campaigns to support education projects with the sale of "fair trade products", film forums, gymkhanas, drawing contests, intercultural games, etc. These young people implicate themselves in their community becoming familiar with the exclusion and poverty of their own immediate environment, singing Christmas carols for the elderly, helping students of other schools with their homework and working in associations for the handicapped.

Advocacy in national and international policies

Follow up: Cooperation, Development and Education public policies

Whilst participating in national and international coalitions, Entreculturas also contributes with reports in order to help change both the Spanish multilateral financial programmes and the education public policies in Latin America.

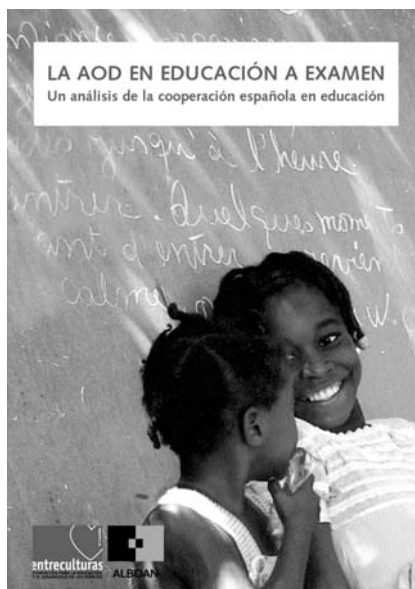

in 2006

- Presentation, together with Alboan, of the report "The Official Development Aid for Education in Spotlight. Analysis of the Spanish cooperation: 1999-2004".

- The Ministry of Education and Science organized the II Seminar of Latin American Education Cooperation for Education with the Universidad Complutense of Madrid in which Entreculturas participated in a work table on "12 Thesis for educational change", the book published by the Fe y Alegría Federation.

- Launching of the programme: Fe y Alegría's Public Action for the right to a quality education in the region.

Entreculturas publishes “The Official Development Aid for Education in Spotlight” first report on the strategy of the Spanish Cooperation for Education.

“The Official Aid for Development in Spotlight. Analysis of the Spanish cooperation: 1999-2004” report was published at a decisive moment and contributed with specific suggestions to the elaboration of the Spanish Cooperation for Education Strategy with an impact on the Official Aid for Development policy.

With this document, Entreculturas and Alboan have demanded the Spanish government to:

- Increase funds for basic education through greater and better Aid for Development. Entreculturas considers as basic education: infant, primary and secondary school and adult literacy.
- Re-direct aid to the less favoured countries or populations.
- Better and more coordinated work by all agents involved.
- Improve aid quality, taking into account the needs of the receiving countries, making the necessary changes, when needed, in specific areas of collaboration and promoting coordination and complementary aspects between different agents.
- Demand that aid should not be tied to the commercial interests of Spanish business firms.

Advocacy in Latin America

The Fe y Alegría Federation has a Public Action Programme, led by Entreculturas, to promote awareness at continental level on the importance of quality education as a public good and to promote social agreements. Although according to Luis Arancibia, Entreculturas Deputy Director, “the goal of this programme is to promote dialogue to generate agreements”.

Participation in Advocacy Campaigns

With the campaigns, we aim to mobilize citizens to speak out and demand the politicians to engage in solving unfair situations that prevent people's development. We work with organizations such as Intermón Oxfam, Educación sin Fronteras, Save the Children, Alboan, Amnesty International, Fundación el Compromiso, Action Aid, REDES, trade unions... Entreculturas considers that working together provides richness and opportunity.

* Global Campaign for Education (GCE) aims to meet the international community's engagements at the 2000 Dakar Summit, with special relevance to the goal regarding that before 2015 all children may receive a quality primary education. This campaign is active in more than 115 countries. The Spanish Coalition is made up of Action Aid, Intermón Oxfam and Entreculturas. Various organizations and education movements help with the celebration of Action Week. www.cme-espana.org

• In the framework of the latest Latin American Summits, the Spanish Coalition of the Global Campaign for Education presented "Lights and Shadows: analysis of debt swap for education", an analysis on how the debt swap for education is being carried out between Spain and several Latin American countries.

• We have developed the Global Campaign for Education didactic unit for more than 400 schools.

• Presentation of the Campaign's demands and activities to autonomic and local entities: E.g. to the Education Department of the Principado de Asturias.

Every child needs a teacher.
2006 Education Action Week

Entreculturas thinks it is necessary that all governments both in the North and in the South recognize the vital role of teachers in society and that they invest in them. Teachers are a key tool in the formation of new social actors to promote political, economic and cultural changes.

The lack of training, low salaries, the high rate of students per teacher or diseases such as AIDS are the main factors that affect teachers in the most impoverished countries. An improvement of their training and salaries would motivate them and improve efficiency in their work.

- A minimum of 15 million more teachers are estimated necessary to achieve universal primary education.
- In many countries such as Chad, there are 69 students per teacher.
- The earnings of a teacher in Nicaragua do not reach 3 dollars per day.
- In Tanzania or Cape Verde, 60% of the teachers have only finished primary education.

Advocacy in the business world

Business support for development

Business firms work with Entreculturas by allocating funds to projects in the South; supporting education for development projects; giving us their know-how and experience to improve our internal management; donating furniture and equipment or supporting our campaigns.

Awareness raising activities

We want to specially focus our activity on improving the perception and awareness of business firms on the impact their activities and investment decisions have on the less favoured. These awareness raising activities are directed to both inside the corporations (managers, stakeholders, employees) and outside (clients and suppliers).

Mutual learning: business firm-NGO

We try to influence, with dialogue, so that their policies might have a positive impact in eradicating poverty, protecting the environment and achieving a fairer society. Thus the importance of trying to establish long term goals.

Two basic work groups, business and academics, are set up. This Forum is jointly developed with the Cátedra de Ética Económica y Empresarial Javier Benjumea at the Comillas University.

“With our work, we try to raise awareness in the business firms so they might assume their responsibility in the globalization of unfair economic structures. This responsibility is more evident in the countries of the South, where big corporations, through their business activities, can either promote or prevent sustainable development, eradication of poverty and the universal right of a dignified life. Therefore, when business firms work in our development projects, we talk about fair labour policies with their employees, fair ethical conduct with their clients, suppliers and stakeholders and environment policies”.

With this campaign, those who wish can donate one euro a month, which is automatically withheld from their own salary, to support an education programme. BBVA donates an equivalent quantity to the employee’s donation. Entreculturas sends us information, which we distribute internally, carries out the project’s follow up and takes care of the financing and management of the project.”

When they look at us in the eye, they know that we know

More than 300 volunteers for social change

in 2006

Entreculturas is engaged in voluntary work, not only because it allows achieving goals and objectives, but also because we see it as a path in which we learn together and we practice a different way of life. They work in the local and international volunteer programmes; at the head office or different delegations; living during two years in a country in the South, or giving a weekly time in our city...; only this personal change that takes place inside us can lead us to a true social change.

The value of commitment

 Volunteers in Spain. The work of Entreculturas is possible thanks to many people who dedicate their time and energy trying to be change agents in the North. Participating in awareness raising and advocacy campaigns, proposing education materials to schools, joining the Youth Solidarity networks, assisting our members and donors, implicating administrations and business firms are some of the activities carried out by volunteers to help change society.

 International Volunteer Programme, VOLPA. This programme invites those who wish to have an encounter with the South to be part of a development programme during one or two years. This programme is made up of three phases: a previous training, the experience in the South and a post volunteer period upon return. The fact of participating in the international volunteer praining means an important change in our way to look and position ourselves in the world. Upon return, volunteers are invited to continue their experience through their implication in their own environment, integrating what they have lived and learnt in the South.

 Experience in the South. For those people related to Entreculturas in Spain, this experience allows them to "put a face" to the South and get a first hand knowledge of Fe y Alegría's work during a few weeks.

- More than 300 hundred people are implicated in social change through their voluntary work.

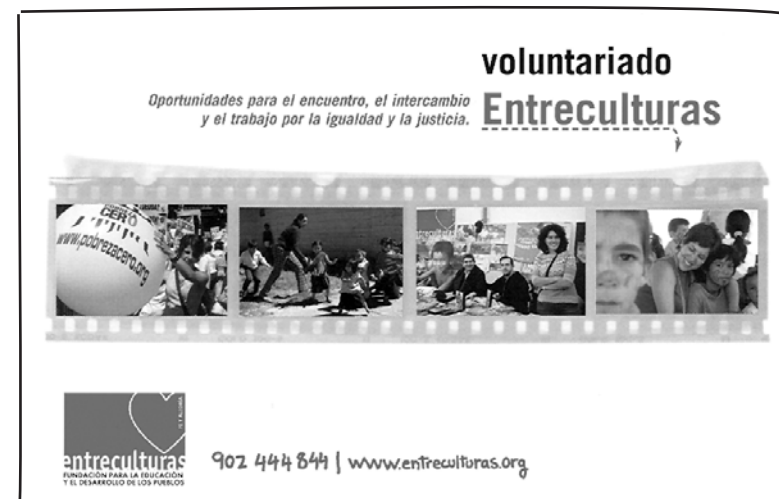

- Seven people have been part of our long duration programme in the South.

- Africa opens to our international volunteer programme VOLPA. Burundi and Cameroon have been the first countries to receive our volunteers.

- 16 people are taking part in the South Experience, travelling to Venezuela, Dominican Republic, Ecuador and Chile where they are working close to Fe y Alegría.

- 35 participants are preparing for their Experience in the South in 2007 with long duration international volunteer courses in five cities in Spain.

- The Madrid delegation sets up an accompaniment group for the volunteers who have recently returned from the projects in the South, after their VOLPA experience.

Ana María Sánchez, Almeria delegation volunteer

“At the delegation, we try to raise awareness among our community on the situation of the South through different campaigns and convince them that together we can work to make the world less unfair”.

José Adolfo Sánchez Pintor. Post volunteer in Tirúa, Chile

“During the three years and a half that I spent in Tirúa, I experienced three different situations: first of all my encounter with the “mapuche” population, where my greatest challenge was to understand that the richness of the world lies in its differences; secondly my encounter with poverty, which has led me to learn that one can smile in the midst of wounds and suffering; finally my own encounter, because I have realized that being humble, respectful with the differences and opening one’s heart are the keys to insertion. No doubt, my volunteer experience in Tirúa has been a turning point in my life”.

Gregorio Monroy Toledano. Director of “Mi Rancho”, international volunteer centre in Bolivia

“I think it is a good idea to have a space in which to share opinions and experiences, especially with the volunteers we have in “Mi Rancho” who are constantly demanding it. I have always believed in the importance of the training there and the support and accompaniment here, and most of all the importance of the accompaniment upon return. VOLPA has sent us very valuable people, well trained by the previous course before the trip”.

Alberto García, a VOLPA in Burundi

“I have been a couple of days in the interior of the country, near Tanzania where we are starting a cattle rearing project for the refugees returning to the country after the war. There, one can see what Burundi is really about. Few people speak French and it is difficult to make oneself understood. Being the only white person in the area does not help and children are very surprised when they see me, some of them even cry because when they are little and are naughty, their mothers tell them that the “whites” will come and eat them; just the opposite to Spain...”

Permanent Training

In order to motivate and accompany volunteers, Entreculturas offers permanent training with courses and seminars to work on a common project, taking into account the human dimensions and socio political aspects of our voluntary work.

in 2006

- Our 4th National Encounter focused on the theme “People in Movement” and we worked on migration issues and revised the integration of our work in a more global and multicultural world.
- We discussed Faith and Justice during the 5th Day Sessions on Spirituality and Cooperation.
- New edition of our training course “Getting close to the South” held in Madrid, Valencia, Huelva and Zaragoza which aims to discuss North-South relations from different views and present alternatives for citizen participation.
- Edition of new communication and supporting materials for our training staff and volunteer monitors in our delegations.

The value of transparency and participation

In Entreculturas we believe that transparency in our work is an obligation we have with our members, donors, volunteers and collaborators. This is why we submit our management to external controls such as the evaluations by Fundación Lealtad and the DNGO Coordinator Commission for Conduct Code. Likewise, we believe that members, donors, volunteers and collaborators should know that they can and should actively participate in our organization to which effect we establish different levels of communication and participation channels.

Improving evaluation processes

The evaluation of our activities both in the North and in the South and their impact on society help us work on how to improve our projects and the quality of the education process in the schools so as to achieve learning objectives and make education a real tool for change.

in 2006

Efficient projects

Entreculturas works for better efficiency and transparency in projects. This leads us to improve our work in identifying needs, achievement indicators and evaluation criteria, in close contact with our local partners.

Officially qualified by the AECI

Entreculturas is recognized as a Development NGO specialized in education and qualified for access to official agreements with AECI. These agreements enable Entreculturas to engage in plural annual programmes of regional scope and therefore improve the efficiency of our work.

Alert to new situations

The complexity of the North-South relations demands a permanent attitude of discussion on matters with considerable impact on people's development. Entreculturas has open debate forums on gender, co development, migrations, external debt...

in 2006

- In El Salvador we run a workshop for identifying projects with 34 Fe y Alegria technicians and pedagogical staff in the framework of the AECI agreement.

- We identify and adapt our project management tool to Fe y Alegria's needs in the Movement's regional offices.

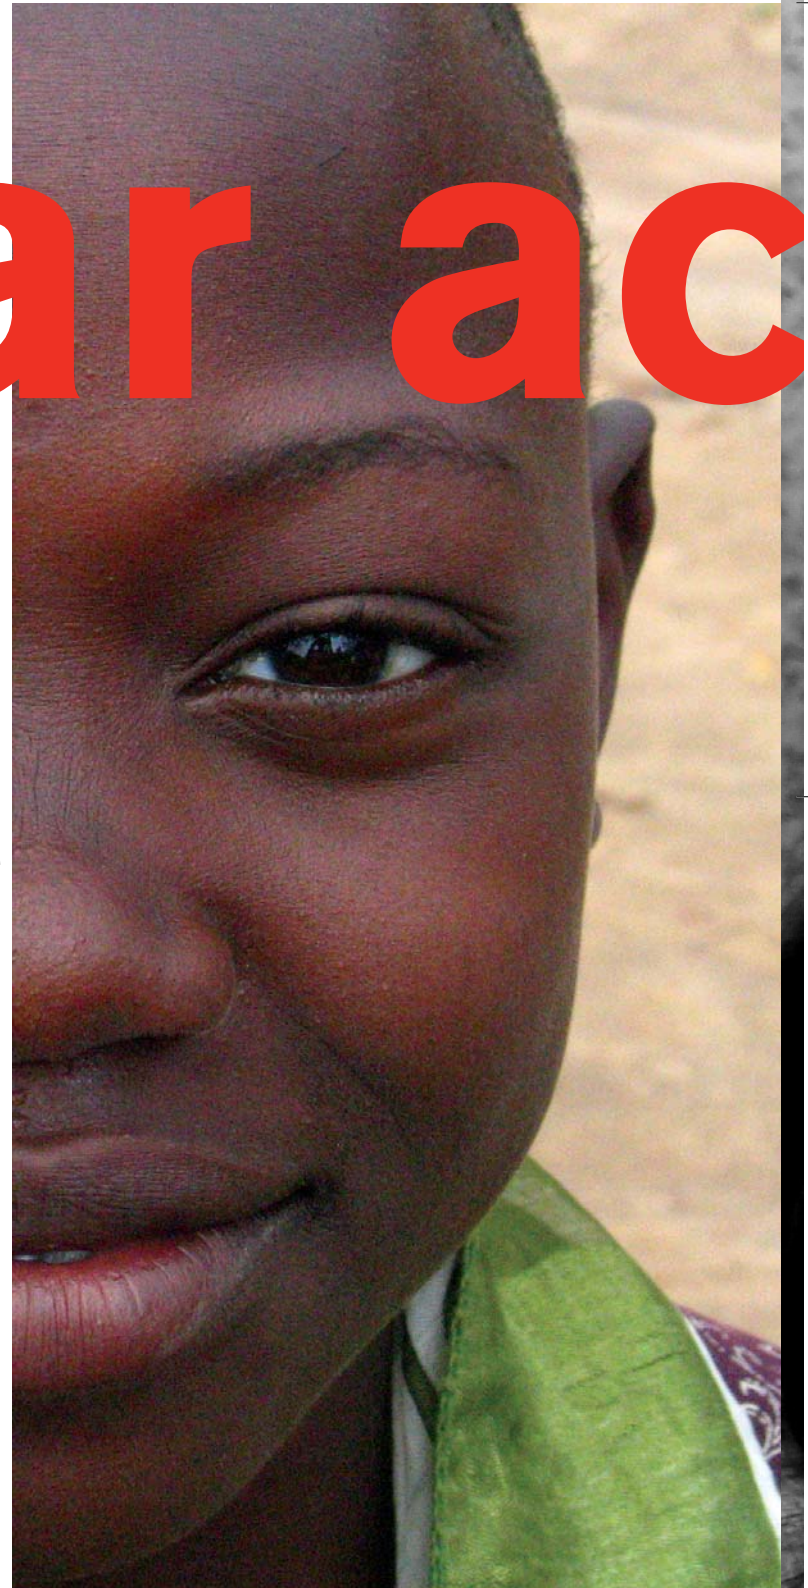

- We have participated in the elaboration of the draft of the new syllabus Education for Citizenship so as to contribute to a global vision on human rights and the problems of the South. This is also our approach in our education materials.

- We have signed an agreement with the AECI on gender awareness, together with Action Aid and InteRed, which will address solidarity links between women's organizations, awareness raising in the media, an advocacy agenda to include gender perspective in cooperation for development and the training of key agents for non sexist education.
- Participation, as CONGDE representatives, in the co development group of the Cooperation for Development Council of the Foreign Office International Cooperation Department, in order to elaborate and discuss a consensus document on this issue.

For the third year running, Entreculturas consolidates its diversification income policy succeeding in balancing its private and public funds.

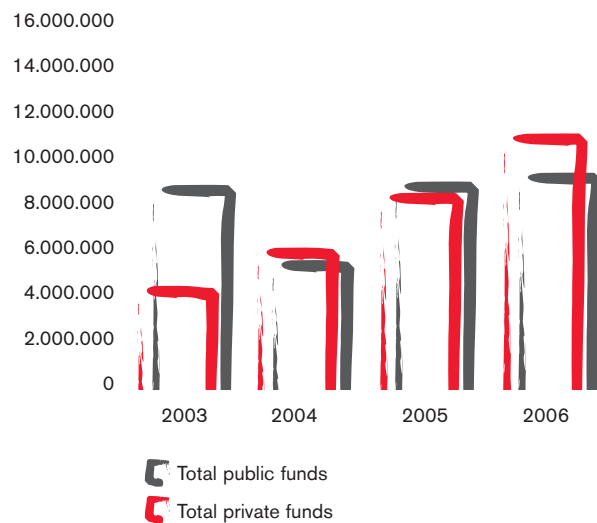

We want to point out that during 2006 funds from private sources have amounted to 54% of the total. Of these funds, revenue increase from members and donors has more than doubled in three years, from 4,5 million euros in 2003 to 9,8 million euros in 2006. This continuous support by our members and donors allows us a greater independence in our activities and to carry out a sustainable work in time and not only as an answer to emergencies.

Use of funds

Entreculturas allocates 92,8% of its funds to the two activities of its founding mission: cooperation for development in the South and awareness raising and advocacy in the North.

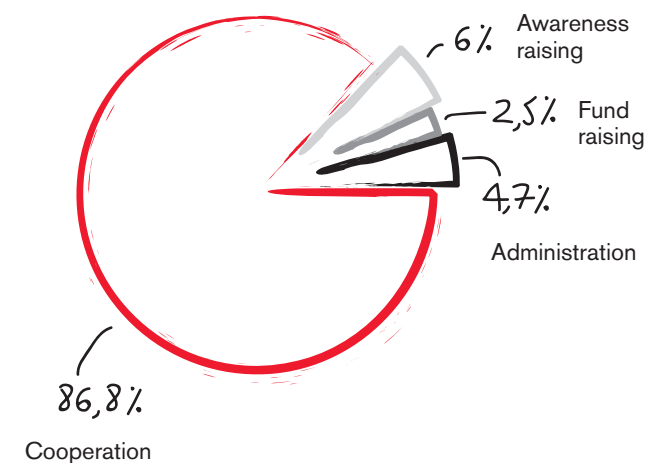

During 2006, for the first time total funds allocated to awareness raising and advocacy for social transformation have amounted to more than 1 million euros, which corresponds to 6% of our funds. Entreculturas has had a continuous commitment with this activity for the past seven years since it considers it key to reverse global injustice.

Since its foundation, Entreculturas has kept an efficient and at the same time austere management. During this period only 7,2% has been allocated to management expenses.

At the end of 2006, Entreculturas received non recurrent revenues which were not used during the year, generating a surplus of 913.413 euros. 650.000 euros of this surplus will be allocated to existing activities and the rest for the institution's reserves.

Reader's guide

The following attachment is more than a mere list of numbers and descriptions. It is about thousands of lives that have been changed, boys and girls who have been able to receive a quality education, men and women with the hope to participate in their communities, teachers determined that their students might have a voice in their future with no danger of being manipulated or exploited. All this has come about thanks to all the people and institutions that support our work.

We offer a reader's guide to understand the different types of activities in the following pages.

1) Projects, Programmes and Agreements. Projects, Programmes and Agreements whose approved financial support has been managed by Entreculturas in 2006, are listed per country.

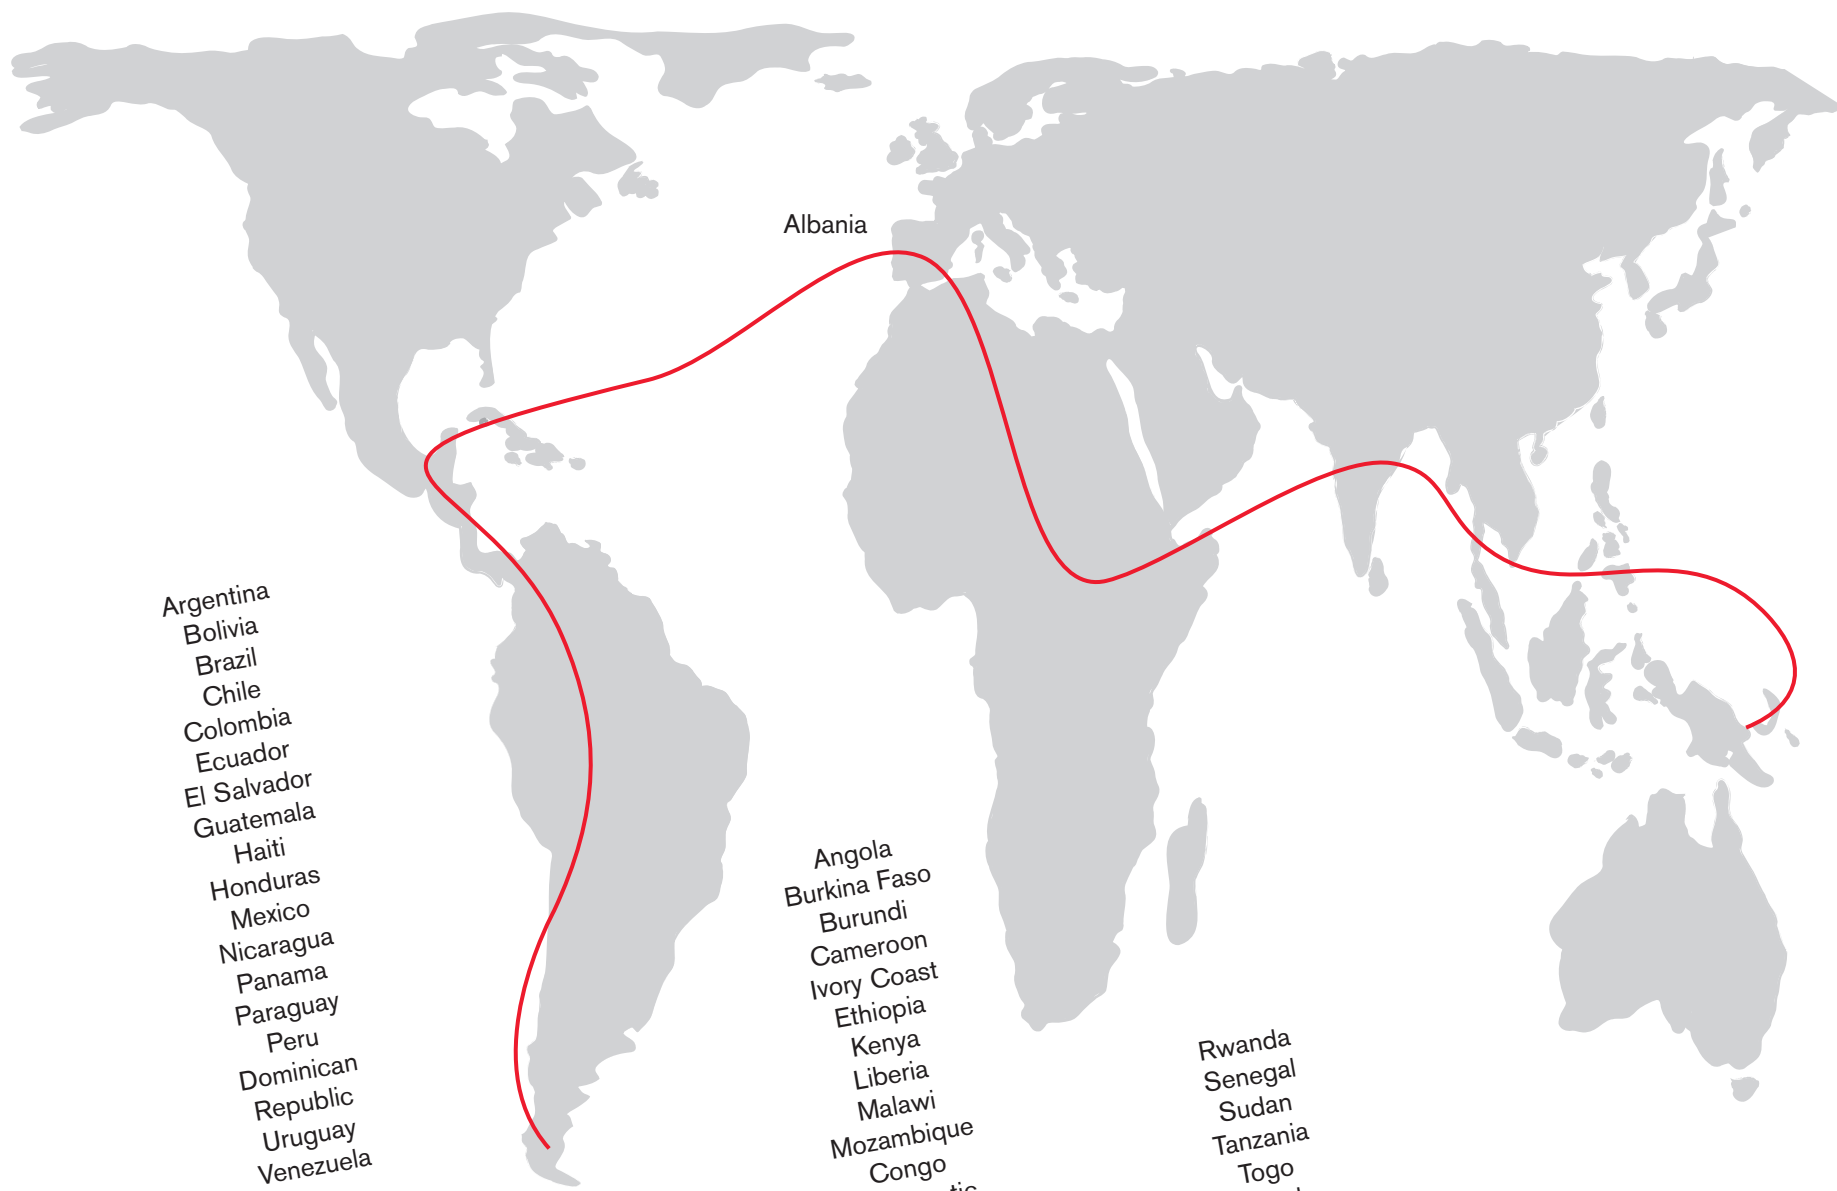

For those projects and programmes, that during 2006 have received support for the first time, information is given on total costs and financial donors.

In the projects supported during this year but initiated in previous years, only the quantity managed during 2005 is shown. In these latter cases, the total cost and activity description can be found in the correspondent report of the year it was initially approved.

We would like to draw attention to two programmes financed by the Spanish Agency for International Cooperation (AECI). On one hand the "Popular Quality Education for Social Inclusion and Education Equity 2004-2006" programme for Latin America Fe y Alegría National Offices. Therefore, the Programme amount allocation for each country is specified as well as the promoted activities. The amount allocated to the programme carried out in "Central America and the Caribbean" has been for this year, 2.402.510,00 euros. The programmes developed in "South America" have received an amount of 2.403.190,00 euros. On the other hand the amount allocated for the Basic Education Agreement for Latin America 2006-2010, also regional, has been 10.000.000,00 euros to be spread over four years. During 2006 we have focused in identifying, describing and initiating three activities in Guatemala, Argentina and a regional Teacher Training programme.

2) Institutional Strengthening. This part includes funds allocated to strengthening the institutions we work with, so as to develop their capacities in areas such as management, organization, planning and financial sustainability, among others. During 2006 we have continued with the collaboration agreement between Entreculturas and Alboan for Fe y Alegría's Institutional Strengthening 2006-2008.
